Off by % points

This represents how far “off” you are from your target. It is the difference between your target percent and the current percentage of your investments in an asset class. You may not want to rebalance unless the difference is significant.