

Reinvesting long-term capital gain

Use the Reinvest Long-term Capital Gain transaction type to record the long-term capital gain (gain on an investment owned for more than 12 months) reinvested in the same holding. Since this purchase is made out of the capital gain, there is no impact on your cash balance.

Note: Your broker may mention the payment as long-term capital gain and its investment in shares as two transactions in your account statement. You need to remember this when reconciling your account.
